

Meet Your Dermatologist

Eleni Moraites, MD

I try to best serve my patients by really listening to them. I have an open mind; I know patients and families come in all different shapes and sizes. I try to learn who patients are as people so that together, we can prioritize their concerns and make a treatment plan that works best for them. Patients do not have to be afraid to be themselves when they come for a visit. I want my patients to feel like the most important person in the world during their appointment and that I would have the same consideration for them that I would my own family members.

Why I Chose Health Care

"I learned to love caring for patients from my father. He was such a joyful physician who cherished his life's work and loved getting to know his patients. I feel the same way about my patients and feel lucky to be able to have to greatest job in the world."
